

From: Karelle Scharff
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/28/02 12:19am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe that Microsoft should be forced to contribute a significant amount of money to the poorest schools. NOT software, NOT hardware, particularly not software or hardware from which they would stand to profit through updates or any other means. In this case, significant means an amount that would get their attention, ie would actually hurt them. Let the schools decide where they should spend the money.

I believe too that there should be some sort of ongoing accountability - so the next time they use monopolistic tactics (and they will) the fine is actually GREATER.

Karelle Scharff
p.o. box 203
Ward, CO 80481

--

They that can give up essential liberty to obtain a little temporary safety deserve neither liberty nor safety. - Ben Franklin